Submitted Without Comment.

A few days ago we were called upon by the representative of a firm of manufacturing ciothers from whom we occasionally bry some goods. He said the owners of a ciothing house in this city to whom they (the manufacturers) also sell goods had written them to say that we had 'cut the prices' on some lines of more's and boys anits of which tacy had bought duplicates, and he had come on to inquire into the matter as they wished to add the retailers in keeping up the prices of their particular good. "Is it so?" he asked. Our answer—quick as a finsh—came in the shape of a counter question. "Have we paid your people for the goods they sold use." There, was but one answer could be given to our question. Twas in the affermative. "Then, we replied, "is none of their blank business what we do wilk our property; tell your people when we need their fusefurence or advice in the conduct of our business we'll ask for it, in the meastine we'll enter no combination to bolsier up high prices. We have, so far, made a living by selling clothing at what we deem reasonable profits and we intend to fight it out on that line, Good morning."

We are daily selling large quantities of separate trousers for gentlemen. There are several causes that lead to this result. The first is at this time of year men are slow to make a radical change in the weight of their clothes, but every man can compromise by wearing a heavier trousers than usual while continuing to wear the light weight coat and vest under a fall overcoat. The second is, the trousers we sell are as near perfection in cut, style, shape, and make as science can make them. The third is, the materials from which they are made are selected with the greatest care, "tone" and elegance of design being the leading features. And the fourth and last is the prices at which we mark these goods are such as to satisfy the most economical buyer. We have them as low as two dollars a pair, and we keep them in all the intermediate grades up to nine dollars.

Our fall overcoats for gentle-

in all the intermediate grades up to nine dollars.

Our fall overcoats for gentle-men are all in, embracing every shade, kind, and quality. Our prices range from eight to twenty-five dollars. You must by all means see these elegant garments before providing your-self with one. self with one.

The proper things for negligee wear this coming season are the sack and four-button cutaway suits. Rough surfaced cheviots in neat designs will largely predominate. Need we say that we have prepared for you? Hardly. A look in our show windows as you stroll by will convince you that we have anticipated your wants. Notice our prices also; that is an important matter to that is an important matter to most people.

Our Boys' and Children's Department is making a splendid record, and no wonder. We keep it well filled with the nobblest and nicest kinds of suifs, overconts and separate pants for boys and children, and we name prices for them that cause exclamations of pleasant surprise from the throngs of ladies who daily visit our house with their boys in search of fine clothing at popular prices.
